CREATION OF GOTHIC ARCHITECTURE

In this monumental study, James and several collaborators have brought together a formidable resource. The scale of James' enterprise far surpasses any previous attempts at the systematic collection of this type of data, which is why this study is so very useful. [...] These volumes are a fundamental resource for the study of medieval art in northern France. SPECULUM

The Creation of Gothic Architecture is an illustrated thesaurus of the Early Gothic churches in the limestone region of northern France known as the Paris Basin. It focuses on the transformation from Romanesque to gothic architecture during the years between 1120 and 1250. The complete set will run to nine volumes.

ROGER ROSEWELL

Highly Commended in the Best Archaeological Book category of the 2008 British Archaeological Awards.

How welcome the publication of this book is! [...] It is genuinely exciting to turn the book's pages and to see these vigorous, relatively unknown designs. THE MEDIEVAL REVIEW

This book brings together, often for the first time, many of the very best surviving examples of medieval church wall paintings. Using new technologies and many previously untried techniques, it allows us to visualize these images as the artists originally intended. The plates are accompanied by an authoritative and scholarly text, bringing the imagery and iconography of the medieval church vividly to life.

ROGER ROSEWELL was educated at St Edmund Hall, Oxford University.

THE CORRESPONDENCE OF DANTE GABRIEL ROSSETTI 9

The Last Decade, 1873-1882: Kelmscott to Birchington IV. 1880-1882.

Edited by WILLIAM E. FREDEMAN

Fredeman has reproduced, sourced and annotated every known letter by Rossetti, and provided appendices in which one seems to be reading the story of a whole generation. [...] This is a magnificent work of scholarship, long overdue and to be warmly welcomed. TLS

In 1878-79, Rossetti lived what might appear to be a more tranquil version of his first years at Cheyne Walk. The long breach with Ford Madox Brown finally ended, and he began to see his brother regularly again; and he managed to complete a number of commissions, and other paintings. However, as the correspondence collected here show, his depression was seldom far away. It also includes a number of letters to Jane Morris. The volume completes our nine-volume set.

NEW SERIES*THE ART OF ANGLO-SAXON ENGLAND

CATHERINE E. KARKOV

Two particular perspectives inform this richly illustrated survey of the art produced in England, or by English artists, between ca. 600 and ca. 1100, in a variety of media, manuscripts, stone and wooden sculpture, ivory carving, textiles, and architecture. Firstly it examines the way art can both create and narrate national and cultural identity over the centuries during which England was coming into being, moving from Romano-Britain to Anglo-Saxon England to Anglo-Scandinavian England to Anglo-Norman England. Secondly, it treats

Anglo-Saxon art as works that have both an aesthetic and an emotional value, rather than as simply passive historical or archaeological objects. This double focus allows us to ask questions about what makes something a work of art, and what makes it endure as such.

Prof CATHERINE KARKOV teaches in the School of Fine Art, University of Leeds.

SPANISH ART IN BRITAIN AND IRELAND, 1750-1920

Studies in Reception in Memory of Enriqueta Harris Frankfort

Edited by NIGEL GLENDINNING &amp; HILARY MACARTNEY

This is the first study wholly devoted to reception of Spanish art in Britain and Ireland. Focusing on Spanish art from the Golden Age to Goya, these studies chart the growth in understanding and appreciation of the Spanish School, and its punctuation by controversies and continuing distrust of religious images in Protestant Britain, as well as by the successive 'discoveries' of individual artists – Murillo, Velázquez, Ribera, Zurbarán, El Greco and Goya. It includes publishes important new research on art importation, collecting and dealing, and discusses the increase in access to and scholarship on works of art. It also considers for the first time the role of women in reflecting taste for the arts of Spain.

NIGEL GLENDINNING is Emeritus Professor of Spanish and Fellow of Queen Mary University of London.

HILARY MACARTNEY is Honorary Research Fellow of the Institute for Art History, University of Glasgow.

DAUGHTERS OF ARTEMIS

The Huntress in the Middle Ages and Renaissance
RICHARD ALMOND

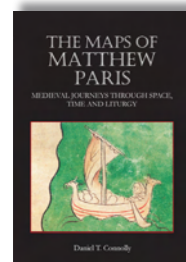

Hunting for sport, food and raw materials was a universal activity in the Middle Ages. The presence of women though is often ignored. Here, using evidence drawn from both contemporary documents and images, particularly from illuminated manuscripts, tapestries, paintings, carvings, engravings and prints, the author shows clearly that women from all ranks of society, from aristocratic ladies to peasants, were actively engaged in hunting.

ARTHUR TUDOR, PRINCE OF WALES

Life, Death and Commemoration

Edited by STEVEN GUNN & LINDA MONCKTON

Today Prince Arthur (1486-1502) is largely forgotten, remembered only as Henry VIII's shadowy elder brother, but in his lifetime Arthur stood at the centre of his father's plans. His death brought a grand funeral and a lasting monument, the chantry chapel covered in Tudor badges in Worcester Cathedral. These richly illustrated essays, by historians, art historians and archaeologists, investigate Arthur's life and posthumous commemoration from every angle.

ENGLISH MEDIEVAL MISERICORDS

The Margins of Meaning

PAUL HARDWICK

Misericord carvings present a fascinating corpus of medieval art which, in turn, complements our knowledge of life and belief in the late middle ages. Subjects range from the sacred to the profane and from the fantastic to the everyday, seemingly giving equal weight to the scatological and the spiritual alike. Focusing specifically on England – though with cognisance of broader European contexts – this volume offers an analysis of misericords in relation to other cultural artefacts of the period. Through a series of themed 'case studies', the book places misericords firmly within the doctrinal and devotional milieu in which they were created and sited, arguing that even the apparently coarse images to be found beneath choir stalls are intimately linked to the devotional life of the medieval English Church. The analysis is complemented by a gazetteer of the most notable instances.

Dr PAUL HARDWICK is Reader in English, Leeds Trinity University College.
