

Founded in 1899 and originally dedicated to Queen Victoria, the VCH is an encyclopaedic record of England's places and people from earliest times to the present day. Based at the Institute of Historical Research in the University of London since 1933, the VCH is written by historians working in counties across England.

The famous VCH big red books, which cover all historical periods, are written county by county from original documents and fieldwork. Introductory chapters include subjects ranging from archaeology to social and economic history, while topographical sections give a comprehensive account of each city, town and village.

BOOKS ON EAST ANGLIA

LATE MEDIEVAL IPSWICH

NEW

Trade and Industry

NICHOLAS R. AMOR

Ipswich in the late middle ages was a flourishing town. A wide range of commodities passed through its port, to and from far-flung markets, bought and sold by merchants from diverse backgrounds, and carried in ships whose design evolved during the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. Its trading partners, both domestic and overseas, changed in response to developments in the international, national and local economy, as did the occupations of its craftsmen, with textile, leather and metal industries were of particular importance. However, despite its importance, and the richness of its medieval archives, the story of Ipswich at the time has been sadly neglected. This is a gap which the author here aims to remedy. His careful study allows a detailed picture of urban life to emerge, shedding new light not only on the borough itself, but on towns more generally at a crucial point in their development, at a period of growing affluence when ordinary people enjoyed an unprecedented rise in standards of living, and the benefits of what might be termed our first consumer revolution.

A FRENCHMAN'S YEAR IN SUFFOLK

NEW

French Impressions of Suffolk Life in 1784

FRANÇOIS DE LA ROCHEFOUCAULD

Edited & translated by NORMAN SCARFE

A fascinating account of provincial life and manners. TIMES LITERARY SUPPLEMENT

When François de la Rochefoucauld and his brother Alexandre visited Suffolk in 1784, the events which were to lead to the French Revolution in 1789 were already in train. François' father, the duc de Liancourt, Grand Master of the Wardrobe at Louis XVI's court, was well placed to appreciate the dangers of the situation in France, and it must have been with anxious hopefulness that he sent his sons (François was then 18) to England for a year to appreciate the ordering of these things in a country which had experienced a revolution over a century earlier. Such reflections are never far below the surface of this otherwise cheerful journal of a year abroad, which gives a vivid picture of English provincial life; François' observations range over such diverse subjects as English customs and manners and methods of agriculture and stockbreeding, and include a lively account of a general election.

RECORDS OF THE CHURCHWARDENS OF MILDENHALL

Collections (1446-1454) and Accounts (1503-1553)

NEW

Edited by JUDITH MIDDLETON-STEWART

The documents in this volume bring to life the day-to-day business and upkeep of the large church of Mildenhall, belonging to a parish whose manor was the richest in the possession of Bury St Edmund's Abbey. The Collections record the weekly offerings gathered in aid of church building and maintenance. The churchwardens' accounts provide evidence for such matters as repairs to vestments and books, the cost of candles, and payments to the various tradesmen employed. The later accounts also show the impact of the Reformation on the church, with the pulling down of the rood, destruction of the stone altar, and erasure of Thomas Becket's name from service books etc. Many of the people in the accounts are also known from their wills, reproduced as an appendix.

The documents are set into context with an introduction, which covers the history of the church during the period, and notes.

NEW ALDEBURGH ANTHOLOGY

Compiled by ARIANE BANKES & JONATHAN REEKIE

A magisterial companion to the festival and its setting. More than 375 splendid pages confirm how much the annual festival of arts and music owes to the landscape and the sea and to the history of local creativity. EASTERN DAILY PRESS

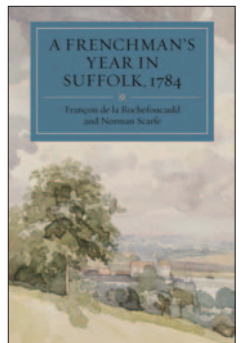

The New Aldeburgh Anthology takes its inspiration from Ronald Blythe's classic Aldeburgh Anthology of 1972, which summoned the spirit of Aldeburgh and the Suffolk coast in words and images that resonate still, and has proved enduringly popular. This new volume brings the story up to date and is for those drawn back to Aldeburgh year after year for the music, writing and arts – and to all who care for the landscape, the sea and the ongoing life of the Suffolk Coast.

Published in association with Aldeburgh Music.

LOST COUNTRY HOUSES OF SUFFOLK

W.M. ROBERTS

During the twentieth century some forty of Suffolk's finest country houses vanished forever. This book relates their tragic stories, with lavish use of engravings, images and pictures to bring to life what has now gone forever. It offers an account of each house and includes an introductory section, covering the economic and social circumstances that caused difficulties for the owners of country houses. It compares the loss in Suffolk with losses in England in general.

COKE OF NORFOLK (1754-1842)

A Biography

SUSANNA WADE MARTINS

Thomas William Coke (1754-1842) is best known as a main promoter of the 'Agricultural Revolution'. A county MP, owner of one of the finest palladian mansions in Britain, and moving in the highest Whig circles, Coke was an outspoken critic of Britain's war against America over independence. The first modern biography of Coke presents him as one of a few landed grandees holding major influence during a period of political turbulence and agricultural change.

COUNTRY REMEDIES

The Survival of East Anglia's Traditional Plant Medicines

GABRIELLE HATFIELD

Many domestic plant remedies were used within living memory in rural East Anglia and survive today. This information has never been written down, but has been preserved orally from one generation to the next. An analysis of these plant remedies brings out many interesting points, including the apparent accuracy of oral testimony, when compared with written information on the subject. Another perhaps surprising point to emerge is that new plant remedies are still being developed, some involving the use of widely grown food vegetables.

THE COUNTRYSIDE OF EAST ANGLIA

Changing Landscapes, 1870-1950

SUSANNA WADE MARTINS

& TOM WILLIAMSON

This book investigates how the landscape of East Anglia developed in the period of the so-called great depression, beginning in 1870, and the phase of wartime intensification which succeeded it after 1930. It considers how fields, farms and villages developed in this period of change; examines the fate of country houses, gardens, and landed estates; looks at the character of habitat change and considers how new kinds of landscape, ranging from vast conifer plantations to holiday resorts, came into existence. The period of the 'great depression' was not simply one of stasis and decay. It was instead a time in which there were fundamental changes in the rural environment.

MEDIEVAL WALL PAINTINGS IN ENGLISH AND WELSH CHURCHES

ROGER ROSEWELL

A long-awaited and very comprehensive survey that will be of major interest to all those interested in exploring ancient parish churches. COUNTRY LIFE

Wall paintings are a unique art form, complementing, and yet distinctly separate from, other religious imagery in churches. This book brings together, often for the first time, many of the very best surviving examples of medieval church wall paintings. Using new technologies and many previously untried techniques, it allows us to visualize these images as the artists originally intended. The plates are accompanied by an authoritative and scholarly text, bringing the imagery and iconography of the medieval church vividly to life.
